MORTUARY RECORDS COMPARED

Ten Names in Census Reports Found in Books.

Efforts to discover alleged discrepancies in the mortuary records of the Health De-partment were begun resterday. The Conis Bureau claimed that about 240 deaths ses Bureau claimed that about 240 deaths in the census reports did not appear on the lists of deaths prepared for the bureau by assistants in the Health Department, and the 240 names were sent to Health Commissioner Starkfolf so that an investigation might be made.

Charles W. Francis, Assistant Health Commissioner told the Board of Health yesterday that about ten names in the census list had been found in the books. He explained that many discrepancies may be found because occasionally bodies of people who die in the city are buried in cemptries of the county, and in such cases undertakers are not always careful to obtain shipping permits from the department. It is possible also, he said that copies of the reords furnished the bureau were not complete, as names could have been omitted when duplicates were made from the books. Mr. Francis has detailed John Claughlin of the Sanitary Invision to compare the census repert with the Health Department records. Mr. O'Laughlin has been assigned to the work temperarily, and in a few days another clerk will be selected.
